5.1. Presentation to Council by Department of Transport & Main Roads - 'History in the Making - the Redcliffe Peninsula Line'

At the invitation of the Mayor, Mr Mango Murphy, former Project Director of the Moreton Bay Rail Link (MBRL) Project and representatives from the Department of Transport & Main Roads attended for an official presentation of a book entitled 'History in the Making - The Redcliffe Peninsula Line' written by the Moreton Bay Rail Project Team and Janet Saunders, documenting the history of the rail line dating from 1887 to completion. Mr Murphy advised that the book was dedicated to author Ms Janet Saunders who had sadly passed away just prior to finalisation.

Mr Murphy thanked Council for its support throughout the duration of the Moreton Bay Rail Link Project, and in particular to Mr Lindsay McLeod (Manager, Major Projects) for his dedication. As a show of appreciation, Council were presented with signed copies of the book and a plaque.

Cr Allan Sutherland (Mayor) expressed his gratitude to Mango and his team, Councillors and officers for the hard work and commitment to the MBRL project to bring it to fruition, and the many friendships that were forged during the process. The Mayor provided special thanks to Mr Lindsay McLeod and his project management team, noting that without the new rail line, The Mill at Moreton Bay Project would not have been realised.

Mr Lindsay McLeod reported that the MBRL project team received invaluable experience to deliver a large and complex project, and that this would not have been possible without Council's confidence and commitment to the project. Mr McLeod thanked Mango for his dedication and persistence in keeping his vision of the rail line, and having produced such high-quality infrastructure.
